Brewing

The method for preparing the Twymder potion is as follows:

1. Begin by crushing equal parts of thistle and honeysuckle, and add them to a pot of boiling water.
2. Next, add a few crushed eglantine petals to the mixture and stir.
3. Once the mixture has simmered for a few minutes, strain out the solids and set the liquid aside.
4. In a separate pot, add a small amount of Zerrikanian Spirit and bring it to a simmer.
5. Add a small amount of finely chopped Wulver liver to the pot, and simmer the mixture for a few minutes.
6. Strain the liver out of the Zerrikanian Spirit and add the strained liquid to the mixture of thistle, honeysuckle and eglantine.
7. Allow the mixture to simmer for a few minutes before removing it from the heat.
8. Bottle the potion and allow it to cool before using.

It is important to note that the quantities of the ingredients and the timing of the simmering may vary depending on the desired strength of the potion. It's also important that the ingredients are fresh and of the best quality. Also, the Zerrikanian Spirit is optional, it's not a necessary ingredient but it adds a better flavor to the potion.

Effects

Within minutes of imbibing, Twymder causes the user's skin to develop a thick, dermal layer. Its primary benefit is the protection against the elements of the cold by insulating a witcher's skin. In addition to the thickened skin, Twymder also causes increased blood flow to the surface of the skin, providing a sensation of warmth that can last for hours. This allows the witcher to brave even the most bitter of cold without feeling the full effects. The potion also aids in the prevention of frostbite and hypothermia by keeping the witcher's body temperature regulated in extreme temperatures. Furthermore, it also provides a boost in the witcher's overall endurance, allowing him to travel for longer periods of time in cold environments before needing to rest.
